Teaching art has been my passion for over 26 years. Whether it is painting, polymer clay or mixed media, spreading the love of creativity brings joy to my life. Helping others discover that art can be the balance in their chaotic lives has been a major goal in recent years and has led to the discovery of many new techniques. My greatest pleasure is watching a student learn one of the new techniques and then make it their own. To that end I continue on my journey of discovery and am fortunate in the versatility of the art.

Over the years it has been my privilege to receive several awards and be published in a number of art magazines in recognition of new polymer discoveries. I have also been fortunate to be a presenter at several polymer clay retreats and online workshops. Creating new avenues to share ideas and cultivate artistic interest is my goal for the future while having fun in the process.
